Biographie de l'auteur Caroline Taggart is the bestselling author of I Used to Know That: Stuff You Forgot From School. Born in London of Scottish parents, she spent her childhood in New Zealand and went to university in Sheffield. Confused for some time, she has now lived in Pimlico for 25 years and thinks of herself as a Londoner, but continues to change allegiance whenever it suits her, particularly during the rugby season. She has worked in publishing for nearly 30 years, the last 18 of them as a freelance editor of non-fiction. She has edited innumerable natural history titles, notably Jonathan Scott's Big Cat Diary books and the tie-in to the BBC series Walking with Dinosaurs, as well as books on gardening, cookery, health, witchcraft, pop music, the Blitz, the D-Day landings, the workings of the House of Commons and the English language. She has also written a handbook for mature students and an encyclopedia of dogs and is the editor of Writer's Market UK 2009. J. A. Wines is a graduate of Oxford University. A freelance writer, compiler and copy editor, her work includes the bestselling Mondegreens: A Book of Mishearings.
