Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurThis is what happens when you put dogs in a photobooth: they smile - they yawn - they snarl - they snog - they frown - they sneeze - they stare - they make friends - they fall out - they strike a pose - they get bored Photographer Lynn Terry didn't know what to expect when she started taking snaps of dogs in a vintage photobooth to raise awareness for local animal shelters. The photos capture the canines' personalities, their sense of humour, their innate need to socialise and their willingness to improvise. Behind that curtain these posing pups and mischievous mutts become superstars in their own right. Tails from the Booth is a wondrous collection of dogs enjoying the spotlight.Revue de presse"Those who enjoyed Seth Casteel's Underwater Dogs...will adore these goofy and endearing canine buddies and will be amazed at how skillfully Terry captures their playfulness. Five paws up!" (Library Journal (starred review))At last, a treatment for Canine Deficit Disorder that doesnt involve stalking strangers with dogs! Curl up with Tails from the Booth, flip through the pages and feel those cravings ebb. Lynn Terry captures the full range of doggyness in her sweet, goofy, hilarious subjects. Youll want to climb into the photo booth and sneak a smooch with every one of these pups. (Sharron Kahn Luttrell, author of Weekends with Daisy)Prsentation de
