Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurTHERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME. OR IS THERE? After an 'incident' one wet Friday night where Professor Andrew Martin is found walking naked through the streets of Cambridge, he is not feeling quite himself. Food sickens him. Clothes confound him. Even his loving wife and teenage son are repulsive to him. He feels lost amongst a crazy alien species and hates everyone on the planet. Everyone, that is, except Newton, and he's a dog. What could possibly make someone change their mind about the human race. . . ?Revue de presseFunny, poignant, and full of heart. (Entertainment Weekly)A wonderfully funny, gripping and inventive novel. (The Times (UK))A masterpiece. . . . Matt Haig is a supreme talent and a writer to cherish, and The Humans is undoubtedly his magnum opus. (The Guardian)A brilliant exploration of what it is to love, and to be human, The Humans is both heartwarming and hilarious, weird, and utterly wonderful. One of the best books I've read in a very long time. (S.J. Watson New York Times bestselling author of Before I go to Sleep) Funny, clever and quite, quite lovely. (Sunday Times (London)) Extraordinary. (Independent (UK)) An absolute corker of a novel: very clever, and very moving, and that rare and precious thing - laugh-out-loud funny. (Daily Mail (UK)) Matt Haig is a novelist of stunning talent, with a laser eye for the absurd and endless reserves of compassion. (Parade Picks) (Parade) A thought-provoking, compulsively readable delight. (Booklist (starred review)) Delightful. (Publishers Weekly (starred review)) Quick-paced, touching, and hilarious. (Library Journal (starred review)) Matt Haig has an empathy for the human condition, the light and the dark of it, and he uses the full palette to build his excellent stories.
